He continually requested that the officers' conduct a field sobriety tests or any tests to show that he was not intoxicated. He protested his innocence insisting that he just got off work. Each plea of innocence was responded to with more attack.
- 20. The defendants took Onyenwe to the police station. At the station, Onyenwe repeated that he should be given an opportunity to explain himself. Defendants responded that "you have no right when you are in custody." Again, the officer shoved and pushed him.
